Every-day Religion

Religion shines at home,
Around the fire-side near at hand,
In hearts that form the family band.
She asks no gold or silver dress,
So deck her out in fashion's style,
Of meek and courteous words she speaks,
Of contrast to a life of guile.
She looks on grief with mingled tears,
And cries her hand to those who weep;
She never hopes suffering by,
Nor laments when others they grieve;
She guards her tongue, that may bring ill,
That little mischief-making elf.
She thinks that slander is a sin,
And never talks about herself.
She shines to live in peace with all,
Changes where others would dissent,
Of courtiers with its great and small,
And with her, let me still content.
With reverence all before the Lord,
She waits of his awful throne,
She in this life hath great reward,
And Heaven at last becomes her home!

Sanctification in Affliction

Thus midnight hours - a mother kneels Beside her sleeping child Who had knelt down upon her hands
She prayed in accents wild

O Father! spare my darling babe
And let this sick heart cry!
Of cannot part with my dear boy!
O Father, hear my cry!

But as she prayed a death light
From yonder sky appears;
Of could he seek this little one -
And mother, dry those tears;

Will bear him to his Father's breast
From sin and sorrow free;
O mother, put thy trust in Him,
And He will comfort thee;

Then Sister, said she, this precious gem Had taken at the thy breast;
Of realized my darling one,
But now, O God, sparest!

May Of Blessed

Prayer

Let him live in the young wife's eyes, O! agony of love!

Who that hears the heaven's cry - Shall ever not let him die

And leave me here alone!
O Father! wilt thou hear thy child?

And long the day in anguish wildly Shall we might live.

Let him live in the mother's eyes
With hands uplifted high

O Father, grant! and spare my boy - Whom knowest he is my pride my joy

O cannot have him die!
Far, he is, my all - my only one

Have I - no one else to spare - When let him live

Let me live! the mother's eyes
With cheeks and brow

O Father, take me not on high O! am more prepared to die -

O am not ready now
O! I spare me! - take this cut away!

O my dear father at my -
But let me live!

Let me live! the Christian eyes O! Father, would'st thou high!

O! Father, when this life is over O! this heart, thy love is more

O! I hear me in the skies!
O! Father, would'st thou hear

O! Father, would'st thou hear
O! Father, would'st thou hear

There let me live!

Amen

Some change and rest

Oh! happy night, smile was all which thou thou hadst over our way,
And all our path now strewn with flowers,
And life an endless day -

Then we should have no courage left,
Oh! we should call our own;
For, if we have no trials here,
Our passions are not shewn.

The stars, that shine in darkened sky, Shine pale, at dawn of day -
The sun, though in midday light, Shines not warm, beaming rays;

Seasons deep cloud must veil our way,
We can know the truth;
Shan't our ears and throats come,
While yet we are in youth.

Oh! let us live, that when we are called To leave this world of gloom,
Our thoughts and deeds may still be bright,
When we are in the tomb!

Change

My dear friend

I have thought much of late about the future of our country and the people who inhabit it.

I feel that we are in a critical position and that the future of our country depends upon the wisdom of our leaders.

I hope that you will be able to do something to help our country in this time of need.

I am sure that you
will do all that you can
to help our country
and its people.

I am sure that you
will do all that you can
to help our country
and its people.

I am sure that you
will do all that you can
to help our country
and its people.

Yours truly,
B. Franklin

I had an angel hand pointing upward where the many are at rest in which God has called me. First, it will not be long before you too shall see them, our Saviour, and may this be but another in the kind your hearts more closely to them.
You have perhaps loved me too well, and may you never hear when an arm of flesh alone.

But how whole hearts to Jesus that den given;
from which some will that not first den seen.

Dear he hear all the afflictions of the world submission to his will, and you shall at last gain the victory over sin and temptation, and rest on everlasting reward. Tell my father and brother to meet me in Heaven, and let him spirit that lead from earth! Many an eye gazed tearfully upon the fair cheeks, and when again the curtain of night were drawn, and all looked as beautiful as the evening on which she died, they slowly and mournfully changed a stage as her body was lowered down beneath the waves; and there will she rest till the sea shall give up its dead on the resurrection morn.

O, how would I love to have my resting place - my grave in the sea. There is something so free in the thought of being laid in God's changing - ground. Oh how many millions have been laid there and still there is room. Can we wonder then at the troubled waves - at the waves, than mightily sea?

any newly waiting the moment when they should see the tall mast in the harbor, and meet again their friends they long since parted from.

Oh we almost there?" said one pale sufferer resting wearily on his sister's arm. "Oh if might dark over again at my own loved home, then my arms around my father's neck, and clasp the flowing form of my darling daughter, I would then again easily await the summons to go hence, than to be free from all this danger and weakness.
But is it not wrong to speak thus? she said: "I would not only say, 'I will do done,' but feel it in my heart, I know that soon the cards that bind me here will be severed, and I would ask that once more I may be carried on deck to look on those waves which will so soon be my winding sheet, and to behold again the silvery light of the moon that will break down so bravely over my grave!
I would be think, sister, that when I died, I should like to be laid in some quiet spot where the willow boughs would bend mournfully over my grave, and where the flowers I loved in life, would still bloom under the nurturing hand of Mother! But now I do not feel so; I am wishing to seek beneath the waves, where the winds shall sing their requiem over my lonely bed.
Oh how should it sit by the graves of the loved and lost from our early homes, but the remembering that is only there, and you can think of my spirit in Heaven! Oh how mean not when I am gone; carry me out quickly for the angels are calling me now! Our mother is standing at the portals of Heaven with outstretched arms to receive her child! Oh my a spirit-glance have I had of that spirit home and long

The whole of night have gathered over the land, the glorious sun has hidden his golden beams behind the western sky, and one by one of the "God-home-nuts" of the angels are leaving forth from their heavenly homes in the sky, while yonder in the moon, sailing with majesty and splendor through the heavens, now clear as at noonday, and now hiding her face behind some dark misty cloud, hidden in a moment, dark, lurking forth each time with unnumbered hosts. What a time for calm, deep, holy, thought! There is a wonderful beauty in these moonbeams, falling so gently and so sweetly upon each child of earth. How are the ears of life almost forgotten, as we gaze upward, with the thought arising in our minds, if this misery and is so beautiful, what must be the splendor of the light shining around the throne of God. We ever look down just as brightly on the poor as on the rich, on the palace and the fourfold hut, turning inward the branches of the tallest forest-trees, and on the humblest flower, blooming away from the sight of human eye, and what a beautiful thought it is that the smallest flower can never bloom unheeded or shed its fragrance unregarded, while the eye of God watches over it! And the pale moon looks down too, upon the dark bounding north sea and gladdens, as when the poor sorrowing ones of earth, come down by tide of grief, which rolls over their heads.

It was on a night like this, that a gallant ship was met gaily bounding over the ocean waves, yet it shed all too slowly for those on board, who were

Strange hearts were melting & shivering For the wraiths died not - they And rushed in on long long street
The form lay swiftly away In the still darkness there -
In a ray of cold care - The sailor boy was turned In his lonely ocean grave
The winds have changed their songs of joy
No requiem for the sailor boy

Send me my boy another Show me that I am old
The days of the slowly sinking sun
Long the sunny clouds with gold Soft wishes are sighing round me Soft voices of gentle sound Oh! lay me beside sweet fate
You are even churchward ground

Send me my father's hand while I
The fact is met again Bless me good-bye in sadness
Each one in our household band
I shall not be what I was in sadness
On the distant peaceful land

Look up

Look up! Look up, thou troubled one,
O day, Father is above;
Ours heart is filled with kindness,
For the children of his love.
Come to him when in sorrow,
And he a balm will send,
To set the aching heart at rest,
To calm the troubled mind.

Look up! Look up, poor orphan child,
The whole earth is before thee; yet, Dread not the storms of angry God,
That now are breaking over thee.
But hark! thy hand upon the plough,
And press it firmly on;
Look not behind, but in ahead,
All what is to be done.

Look up! Look up, lone wounded heart, Blest of each glad some ray;
Place thy trust in him who dwells
In realms of cloudless day.
Look up, and ask him of the peace Which nowhere else thou wilt find;
Call him, and he will quickly come,
Thy wounded heart to bind.

Look up! Look up, forsaken one;
Lost faith didst the glow Dark hours round thy spirit now;
O that religion's beam Took up to him who dwells above,
The King of Heaven and earth;

O mother, do not weep for me, since we shall meet again.

Little May

Once I heard a mother pray,
At the closing hour of day,
Father let thy angels stay, Keep ever little May.

From her heart we hear the flowers;
From the summer fields the leaves; Hark her jubilee! Father, say Thou hast kept us for little May!

First we hear still voices - sweet
In the green woods and meads Hark not the unfold the world Hark not what shall win at last

And the mother lingers don't All reproach as kindly meant
And her heart never did say Father watch over little May

The dying Californian to his Mother Mother, I am dying now,
Your life is ebbing fast,
The death darts gather on my brow, Soon, soon I shall have passed The sea upon whose darkling wave
I died to launch my bark;
There's something dead in the grave,
So dreary, cold and dark.

My mother, it is hard to die, Unhappily, and so young,
So soon beneath the cold to die,
If not so little done.
But, mother, if thy counsel find I've not erred (but then!)
I've shun'd the harms of vice and sin, Dobruchoy and crime.

But I could like dear boys' messes,
I could could welcome death,
I could I but in thy arms recline,
I could my latest breath,
I could I but hear thy blessing now,
On lips disdaining harm,
On lips thy soft touch on my brow;
In death might have its power.

Oe dand my spirit, as I near The fast converse those;
I would my mother, thou wert here,
I seek my hour of rest;
When this hath reached you I shall be Beyond the reach of pain!

Dear Member,

This year we have been following a new pattern of events under the direction of a new program committee with Otis M. Porter, Jr., Chairman.

The first event was called a Saturday Social and occurred on March 16. There was a slide presentation of new and old pictures with comment by your president. This was enthusiastically received and about ninety people came to the Julia Wood House. Unfortunately only about 65 could be seated, so some had to be turned away. There have been many requests for a repeat performance and one may be scheduled later. This lecture on Falmouth's history is much the same as has been given to school children, clubs and other organizations.

On Saturday, June 8, there was a special Open House to show the museums which had been entirely cleaned and rearranged much as they appeared in the March - April issue of Colonial Homes. All across the country people saw the article and we felt sure there would be visitors expecting to see our museums as depicted in the magazine. Although refreshments were served and a notice was mailed out, the attendance of some 30 members was disappointing.

However, on Sunday, July 7, over 200 people came to a Cup Plate Tea, put on in celebration of Barnstable County's Tercentenary. New members were signed up and our cup plates and those of Barnstable County enjoyed brisk sales. Other items such as Katharine Lee Bates illuminated prints and Patriot Lad of Old Cape Cod as well as other books were sold. Music was furnished by Mike Crocco and a trio in the Gazebo and refreshments were served. The grounds and gardens were much admired by all as the Garden Club committees had them in prime condition with many blooms.

On Saturday, July 20, we presented a slide lecture by William F. Robinson, the author of a new book Cape Cod: Henry David Thoreau's Complete Text with the Journey Recreated in Pictures. The publishers, Little Brown and Company, asked the author to describe his book, and the Society arranged to invite all interested people in town to attend and provided the hall. Several societies on the Cape have planned similar events. About 50 people enjoyed the talk and found the pictures very interesting. Otis Porter, our program chairman, planned the event. He exhibited the new book which is one of a distinguished series by the same author. The sale of autographed copies was handled by Bill Banks of the Market Book Shop which will have them for sale. Mr. Banks has generously offered to donate 20% of the receipts for sale of the book to the Society.
